

Miss Barnett

Hi, I am Miss Barnett and I am just starting my third year teaching at Droxford. Teaching at Droxford Junior School is thoroughly enjoyable, not only because of its beautiful setting, but also its passionate staff and enthusiastic, bubbly children.

Previous to teaching at Droxford, I studied at the University of Plymouth for my BEd Primary Teaching degree. There, I worked in many different schools with children across all ages. My ambition since I was young has always been to work with children and to support them as much as possible during their education so I am extremely pleased to have achieved my goal.

As well as teaching, I also lead science in the school which is very exciting! I love doing experiments and watching children's faces as they see the magic unfold! Other than science, my other favourite subject is English. I enjoy reading in my spare time and I love to write creative stories (especially when they include penguins!)

My other passion which I am lucky enough to teach after school is dance. Dancing has always been a hobby of mine and I now have the pleasure of sharing this enthusiasm with others. I hope to continue this throughout my time at Droxford.

Being a part of a child's learning journey is such a joy and I can't imagine being in any other career. I look forward to the rest of my time at Droxford and all the new challenges and experiences it will bring!
